PLYMOUTH IVC CODE OF CONDUCT

It is hoped that members will use the club to the full. This is a two- way commitment, because Plymouth IVC is run by its members for its members. So join in, enjoy the socialising and feel free to put on or suggest events that you would like.

The club is non political, non racial and non-sectarian.(Constitution item 3).Members should therefore respect each others' rights and opinions. We are just here to enjoy social activities in a relaxed and friendly environment.

Good manners are essential to a happy social group so all members are asked to conduct themselves in the way they would expect from others.

Please be especially considerate at events in members' homes. "At home" events are a feature of our club`s activities and members attending should be courteous to the host, hostess and others. Please note, events in members' homes are presumed to be Non Smoking.

There is no formal dress code for the club. However, members are expected to dress appropriately for whatever event is being held.

Members may bring along guests/prospective members to club events. The standard of behaviour of such guests is the responsibility of the members introducing them.

Any Committee member can be contacted to discuss anything you are not happy with. This should always be your first step if you have any complaint, or need advice concerning any club matter.

Any serious breach of this Code of Conduct may result in termination or non-renewal of membership, at the discretion of the Committee, as detailed in item 11 of the club's Constitution, available on request.

We hope you enjoy coming along to our events and what our club has to offer.
